

Zack May - Eagle Scout Project
2007

My project revolved around the auditorium stage at Stuart Hobson Middle School. Specifically, making repairs to the front face of the stage. Over the years, many school assemblies and other events had resulted in damage to the wood finish of the front face of the stage. The primary task of my project was removing the old finish (which got rather messy) and applying a new finish. The secondary task was a preventative measure—much of the previous damage had been caused by banners and other objects being stapled to the stage. So, to prevent future stapling directly onto the newly finished wood, a long strip of cork board was attached to the top edge.
